Why This Course

Government budgeting is one of the most important tools for turning public priorities into practical action. In the public sector, budgets are not only financial documents. They reflect policy choices, service delivery priorities, resource constraints, accountability expectations, and commitments to citizens and stakeholders.

Effective public sector budgeting requires clear strategic planning, sound resource allocation, performance measurement, transparency, and strong communication. Public sector professionals must be able to connect budgets with outcomes, justify decisions, manage competing priorities, and respond to fiscal risks and changing public needs.

This intensive 1-week course equips public sector professionals with essential skills and best practices in government budgeting. Through practical exercises, case studies, budget planning tools, performance-based budgeting techniques, and communication activities, participants will learn how to develop more transparent, strategic, and results-focused budgeting practices.
